In closely reading the helpdesk email, it appears they are saying the interest group send the receipt for the comment, not regs.gov. "It appears that comment was submitted by an interest group that then used her email address to send a receipt back to the user." Could one of you please clarify whether it is regs.gov that sends receipts, or interest groups doing mass postings?

Second, if regs.gov does send email receipts, could one of you find out if the system sends an email acknowledgement to everyone whose name is included in an attachment (i.e. "attached are 500 postcards or letters"), or only to those whose names are on individually-submitted comments?

Absolutely, I'm locating the comment now and will withdraw it. Did she mention which interest group it was so I can inform the Program Manager?

General Comment

I am appalled that our treasured national monuments are up for review at all. Every single one of our parks, monuments and cultural or historic sites is worthwhile and belongs as a part of the American story. I am adamantly opposed to any effort to eliminate or diminish protections for national monuments, and I urge you to support our public lands and waters and recommend that our current national monuments remain protected. An attempt to attack one monument by rolling back protections would be an attack on them all. National monuments have already been shown to be tremendous economic drivers. The $887 billion outdoor recreation economy and businesses in gateway communities rely on the permanency of these protections when making decisions about investing in these communities. This is a vital economic driver for our rural communities that cannot be ignored or hamstrung. Our national monuments should remain protected for future generations to enjoy - they are a gift that belongs to all. Please make sure you side with the people who support national parks, monuments, historical and cultural sites.
